

How apt is striving to help improve employee performance and create a better work environment.

In order to help companies improve the performance of staff and avoid the pitfalls of new employment legislation, apt have designed a one day Diversity Training Programme for managers and staff structured to meet companies business needs.

From a recent survey on Diversity, 70% of experienced Managers answered just 3 questions correctly, which suggests that they were likely to break employment law with all the consequences that this would entail, such as unlimited compensatory awards that can end up costing companies hundreds of thousands of pounds.

Companies that have embraced diversity have improved employee satisfaction as well as increased productivity and apt want to help other companies achieve this.

Diversity legislation is continuously evolving. However apt feels diversity is also the "right thing to do" to ensure that people are motivated and perform to the maximum.
